Also this year, the students of Max's two geography courses took part in an exciting lecture by speakers from Nepal and India. The subjects of forced labor and exploitation as well as discrimination and sexual violence were impressively presented by the speakers. The two guest speakers Irada Gautam (Nepal) and SM Prithiviraj (India) managed to give the students an impression of the problems that the two countries are struggling with with films, folk music and an informative PowerPoint presentation. In addition, the delegates are involved in the following organizations: Aawaaj (Breaking the silence - Nepal) and Care-t (Community Awareness Research and Education - India) and occupy crucial leadership positions within the organizations mentioned above. So they campaigned for the fight against child labor, for the rights of girls and young women and the right of children for an intact environment, access of women and children to justice, secure schools places,

"Especially in geography lessons, in which the different areas of the earth are the focus of the learning content, it makes sense to give students an insight into other cultures and thus to teach acceptance, tolerance and cosmopolitanism," said teacher Johannes Hessel at Thanksgiving to the speakers and the project partner terre des hommes. Special thanks go to Regina and Daniel Hewer, who have repeatedly brought speakers from their network to Max and thus enriched the diverse range of our school.
